International Day of Peace

21st September

What is peace?

Peace is a word that gets used a lot.

Parents might say...

Give me a few minutes peace!

Teachers might say...

Let's have five minutes peace and quiet!

So what is 'peace'?
Think for a moment about what you think peace is.

Peace is...

One definition of peace is: freedom from disturbance; a time of tranquillity when you are not disturbed by anyone or anything.

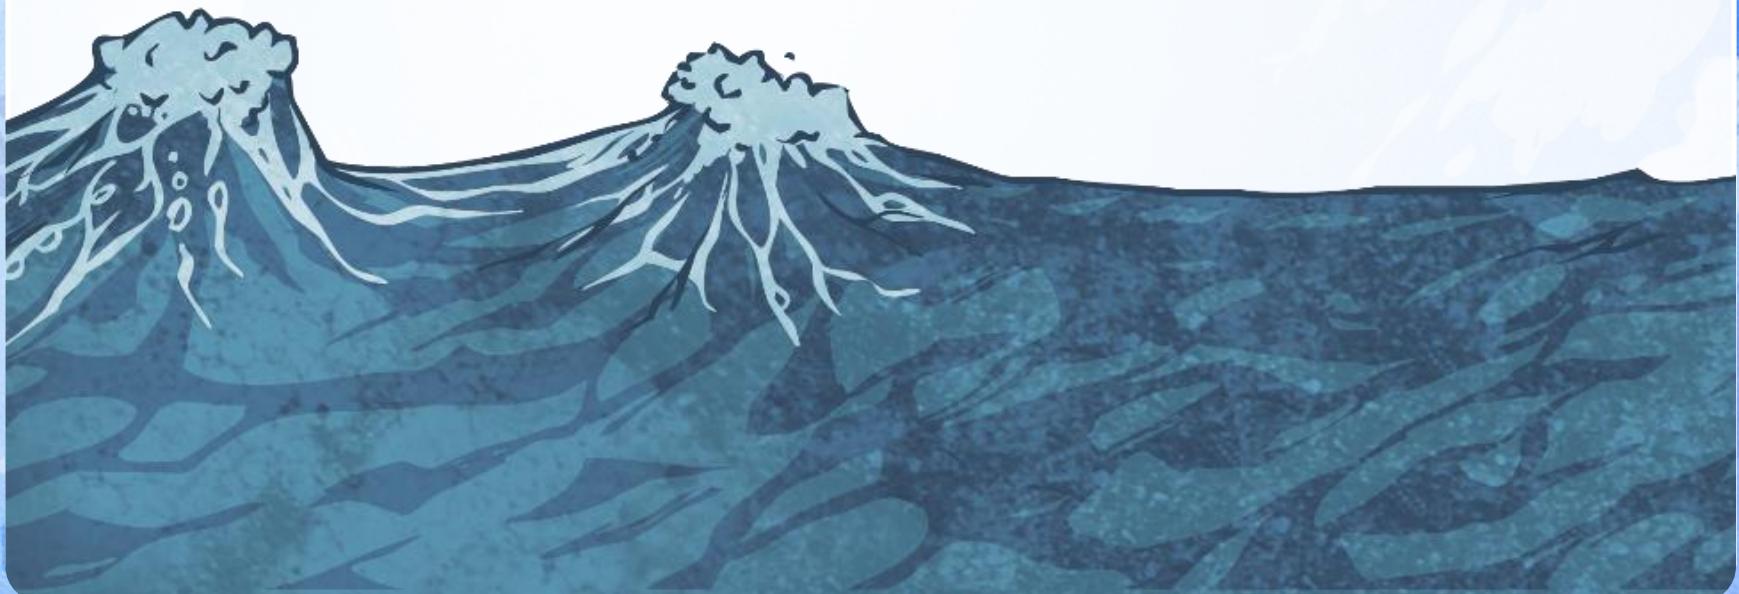

Think of a time when you were not disturbed by anyone or anything.

Peace is...

Peace is also a state or period in which there is no war or a war has ended.

If there is war, there is no time for tranquillity. Your life is disturbed and upset.

The United Nations

The United Nations organisation was formed after the Second World War ended.

The world was in a mess. Neighbouring countries could no longer trust one another, and there was no peace.

In 1945, representatives from 51 countries met in San Francisco, USA. The representatives signed an important document with four very important agreements within it.

The UN Agreements

The representatives from the 51 countries were promising the following:

To maintain international peace and security.

To develop friendly relations among nations based on respect for equal rights.

To achieve international co-operation in solving international problems.

To be a centre for harmonizing the actions of nations in the attainment of these goals.

Basically, they were all agreeing to seek and maintain peace around the world.

The International Day of Peace

This special day began on the 21st September 1981 and was organised by the United Nations General Assembly.

The purpose of International Day of Peace is to,

'provide a globally-shared date for all humanity to commit to peace above all differences and to contribute to building a culture of peace.'

Our Responsibility to Peace

We can help by creating a culture of peace in our own environments.

We can live more peacefully at home. We can be facilitators of peace, instead of the ones who may cause arguments.

We can also work more peacefully at school. We can strive to sort out minor disagreements and maintain friendships. We can accept that everybody is different and embrace diversity.

We can be a voice of peace. We can bring tranquillity to our homes and schools.

Make a Difference!

By being peaceful in our everyday lives, we can help to bring peace to the world.

We can make a difference!
